Core Components

- Defining the right problem: What problem are you trying to solve, and why? This question is the most important question you can answer as a leader.
- Becoming a servant leader: You want to serve others in service of your end goal.
- Aligning the needs of your team: Make sure you understand what your team members want to achieve so they can help you achieve what you need to achieve.
- Being emotionally open and vulnerable: Creating a strong foundation of trust helps to increase the strengths of your relationships and increases the ability of your team to get things done.
- Giving and receiving feedback: On-going feedback can help you identify what is working, what's not, and why.
- Course correcting as needed: No plan ever goes according to plan. You need to adjust your work as needed to reach your end goal.
